Dull Politics, Happy Land

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

"HAPPY the nation that has no history," was said, when history was made.

Happy is this nation that can afford to pay so little interest in nominations to be made at Kansas City this week, and at Houston later!

THE extent to which the country runs itself, and gets along somehow, is shown in lack of serious public interest in the nation's most important men.

The president, once elected, has more power than any reigning monarch. And the people take it for granted that everything will be all right, no matter who is elected.

Is it a fact that half the voters, at least, are more interested in this year's automobile than in this year's president?

Our solemn fathers were so careful in planning the new government. The people were to rule, but not absolutely. They would choose electors—superior men—and the electors would select the President.

Now politicians and corporations, about which the fathers knew nothing, take responsibility, while the people go on taking things as they come, quite contentedly.

VISITORS to the Riviera, looking over the blue Mediterranean, often say to a secretary, or servant, "Look at the paper and see what the weather is like in New York."

If New York is freezing the Riviera visitor is happier.

Cotton Mather assured his Puritan New England congregation that the blessed in Heaven would be permitted to look down and see friends burning in Hell—and be made happier by the sight.

To make your own lot seem bearable think of brave General Nobile and his crew, adrift on polar ice. That ice is frightfully rough, often piled up in hummocks, each a small mountain. The gas bag, "dirigible" no longer obeys and drags at the mercy of the winds. To abandon that dangerous, shifting shelter and its food and heat supplies would be fatal. Seeing and killing an occasional bear is the only hope as the fliers wait for rescue.

Those brave Italians need all the courage and fortitude that took them on their perilous adventure.

SEAN O'CASEY, living in Ireland, wrote fine Irish plays—"Juno and the Paycock," "The Plough and the Stars" and other great successes.

O'CASEY went to London, got a dress suit, and, perhaps, a slight English accent, and now the Irish players refuse to produce his latest work, "The Silver Tassel."

W. B. YEATS, who would like to be friendly, says the play is too long, without substance, and gets nowhere.

POOR O'CASEY is shocked and surprised, but his experience is not new. When Robert Burns went to live in Edinburgh, met fine ladies with titles, and wrote sonnets, his stuff was worthless. If Bunyan had written "Pilgrim's Progress" at the Ritz, instead of writing it in jail, it would not have lived. A man reflects his environment and conditions about him.

SOME churches refuse to join a hymn-singing contest because they don't like Kipling's "Hymn Before Action."

They say Kipling's blood-and-thunder composition would not please the Lord, forgetting some fighting advice that Jehovah gives to His chosen people in the Old Testament.

DAY OF BLISS PROVIDED FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Park Officials Prepared for Entertainment of 4,000 Guests

IS "HOWLING SUCCESS"

Amusement Center Transformed into Kids' Paradise in Event Today

Maybe there were 3,000 and maybe there were 4,000—just try and count 'em—but anyway, there wasn't a Klondike or an Eskimo Pie or a bottle of pop or a whistle left this afternoon at Crystal Lake Park after The Marion Star Just Kids Safety Club party had wound up. And, park officials and Marion merchants had prepared for 4,000 boys and girls.

These 3,000 or 4,000 youngsters today were lifted to the seventh heaven of bliss.

For years they had dreamed of that Kid's paradise where they could hop on the Merry-Go-Round and not pay; then, go over on the Old Mill, and not pay, and then, go over on the Custer Car and not pay, and on and on, and then get ice cream and pop—and not pay.

They had dreamed of this. And, today it came true.

Veritable Paradise

Crystal Lake was converted into a Kid's Paradise today for members of the Just Kids Safety Club. We say 4,000, because The Star has issued more than 4,000 buttons, nearly 4,500, to those youngsters of grade and junior high school age who had given their pledge that they would "Look up and down before crossing the street."

The members of the Just Kids Safety Club tonight will have an ocean of gratitude for the men who made their big day possible.

When The Star recently suggested to Manager Fred B. Scherff of Crystal Lake Park that some kind of a party for the members of the club might be a good thing, Scherff became tremendously interested and enthused.

Nothing was too good for the kiddies, he said. And, after arranging to have the park thrown open for the day, he visited various merchants in Marion. From Jay Vaughan, the printer, he secured the promise of a supply of tickets.

BOARD UNINFORMED ON ROAD PROJECT

Harding Highway Widening Strictly State Job, Commissioners Say

Plans of the State Highway Department for widening Harding Highway east and west of Marion are unknown to the Board of County Commissioners, O. W. Kinnamon, chairman, stated today.

The state department announced Saturday that a meeting was to be held with the county commissioners here this week. Plans for widening the road were to be discussed, according to L. H. Wismar, division engineer of the sixth district.

County commissioners were unable to give any reason for the proposed meeting, in that they have no jurisdiction over state roads such as the Harding Highway.

The State Department of Highways is responsible for maintenance and improvements of state highways, according to the commissioners.

According to Wismar's statement, the greater part of the expense of widening the road will be borne by the state with a small per cent. levied on the county. It is planned to add four feet to the width of the road from Five Corners, about six miles east of Marion, to the east city limits and from the west city limits to Big Island, a distance of approximately eight miles.

FOOS MURDER CASE SET FOR TRIAL JULY 9

Date for Everett Koon Hearing Fixed After He Enters Plea of Not Guilty

"Not guilty" was the plea of Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, when arraigned before Judge George S. Scofield in Common Pleas Court this morning on the charge of murdering Henry Foos, aged farmer living north of Marion.

With the exception of the statement that he had no attorney, the words "not guilty" were the only ones spoken by the prisoner.

July 9 was set as the date for the trial. Homer E. Johnson, Marion attorney, was appointed by the court to defend the prisoner. Johnson was in the courtroom when the appointment was made.

Only a few persons were in the courtroom for the arraignment. The prisoner was brought in at 8:15 o'clock this morning and a few moments later entered his plea of "not guilty."

Standing uneasily on one foot, Koon carefully followed the reading of the indictment by the court clerk. He followed the reading sentence by sentence from his copy as the clerk went through the long grammatically involved legal article.

Following appointment of his attorney and setting of the date for trial the prisoner was led from the courtroom handcuffed to a deputy sheriff.

FARM EMPLOYE IS VICTIM OF FATAL CRASH

Joseph Dilsaver Meets Death When Struck by Car West of City

INVESTIGATION MADE

Prosecutor and Sheriff in Charge of Inquiry; Auto Driven by H. E. Thorpe

Joseph Dilsaver, age about 35, was instantly killed about 9:30 o'clock Saturday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by H. E. Thorpe of near Green Camp. The accident occurred on the Green Camp-pk about two miles west of the city limits.

Mr. Dilsaver had been in Marion and was returning on his bicycle to the home of Millard Thibaut of near Green Camp, where he was employed as a farm hand. Thorpe, who was driving east, attempted to pass another car driven by Walter Snyder of 589 Blaine-av. He met the bicycle head-on as he pulled around the other car.

Mr. Dilsaver was thrown to the pavement. According to a report from the mortuary this morning, he suffered a crushed chest and broken neck.

Investigation Made

The accident was investigated by Sheriff James Imel and Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann who were called immediately. A hearing was to be held in the office of the prosecuting attorney this afternoon. A number of witness, including Thorpe, are to be examined.

The report of Coroner B. D. Osborn will not be made until after the hearing.

Mr. Dilsaver was identified through a number of receipted bills found in his pocket. He had spent the early part of the evening in Marion and after paying a few small debts and laying in a supply of cigars for the week-end was returning to his home at the Thibaut farm.

His new bicycle was demolished in the collision. So far as officials are able to learn, Dilsaver is unmarried.

The body was taken to the Hess, Markert & Ate Funeral Home in the Schaffner & Queen ambulance.

Cole's Address Most Widely Circulated Pamphlet at K. C.

KANSAS CITY, June 11—An Address by Col. Ralph D. Cole of Findlay, O., delegate from the Eighth Ohio Congressional District, attacking the candidacy of Herbert Hoover today was receiving wider circulation than perhaps any other bit of convention literature.

Admirers of the colonel had his speech printed in pamphlet form. Youngsters in Boy Scout uniforms, one to nearly every downtown corner, thrust the booklets into the hands of every passerby. After a 15-minute walk a pedestrian finds he has collected from one to 10 of them. As quickly as a boy's supply is exhausted, it is rapidly replenished.

Colonel Cole's admirers describe him in the pamphlet as "an orator whose addresses are intellectual masterpieces."

SELECTION OF RAICHLEY JURY IS UNDER WAY

First Steps in Will Case Taken in Wyandot County Court

FIRST LEGAL CLASH

Marion Attorneys Argue Motion in Opening Tilt of Trial

BY MARION O. CHENOWETH
Star Staff Writer

Upper Sandusky, June 11—Eleven prospective jurors to hear the Raichley will case had been called for examination when the Common Pleas Court of Wyandot County adjourned at 12 o'clock today. The proceedings were to be resumed at 1 o'clock. The case is being heard in Wyandot County, under a change of venue order issued by the Marion County Court.

Selection of the jury and preliminary argument of legal technicalities occupied the hour and a half between 10:30 o'clock, when the court reconvened, and noon. Judge Earl E. Carter was on the bench.

Those questioned in opening proceedings for selecting a jury were Ivan Alter, Joe Rangler, Floyd Baker, Carl Rickenbach, Jesse Brewer, Elmer Turney, Ellis J. Brown, Mrs. Earl W. Parnell, Mrs. Frank Suters, Mrs. Herman Fox, and Mrs. William Hughie.

One of the developments as the case got under way this morning was the naming of three more persons as party defendants. They were Mrs. Margaret Bolton, Thurlow Raichley and Frank Land, all of Kansas City. Mrs. Bolton and Raichley are children of Fred Raichley, who was given a bequest of $2,000 in the will of the late Burr Raichley, the document which relatives are seeking to have set aside.

Fred Raichley, however, died last Feb. 8. Mrs. Bolton and Frank Land were executors of his estate.

File Answer at Once

After being named party defendants Mrs. Bolton and Thurlow Raichley immediately filed answer to the petition of the plaintiffs. In the answer they confirm the allegation of the plaintiffs that the will of Burr Raichley is not

Wilcox, who arrived with the New York contingent yesterday, is convinced Coolidge wants the nomination "crammed down his throat." What he will do with it once it is his is another matter, and Wilcox said he was not prepared to express an opinion on that.

Dr. U. S. Davis yesterday tendered his resignation as pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, following his sermon at the morning service.

In the resignation, stated briefly, Dr. Davis gave no reasons for resigning, expecting to include that in his farewell sermon to be given at a union church service Sunday night, June 24, at First Presbyterian Church. The resignation is to become effective June 30. No action has been taken as yet by the congregation of the church.

While he has made no definite plans for the future, Dr. Davis expects to continue in the ministry, settling in the east. During the next two months he will fill preaching engagements in Baptist pulpits in Boston and Lynn, Mass., and with Mrs. Davis will leave July 1 for Centerville on Cape Cod, for the summer.

He has held several offices in the Marion County Ministerial Association, of which he now acts as chairman of the program committee.

Dr. Davis came here from South Bend, Ind., March 15, 1925 to succeed Rev. George M. Landes, now of New Castle, Pa. He served as a South Bend pastor for seven years.

UPWARD TREND SHOWN IN NEW PROJECTS HERE

Marion Now in "Heads Up" Era, Improvement Activities Indicate

BUILDINGS GOING UP

Signs of Advancement Apparent Throughout City; Spirit of Rivalry Helps

BY MURRAY POWERS
Star Staff Writer

Marion is in an "heads up" era. She is in one of those cycles of public improvement and optimism. For the past few years she hasn't been so tidy a housekeeper, as good a manager, or as inviting a mother as she might have been. Things often have been let slide a bit.

But, of late, Marion has looked about. Her children have been casting their eyes in other directions. They have seen that Marion has gradually become a wee bit old-fashioned. And they want her to become more modern, to get out and step with others. They realize that a decade ago when one reached the age of two score and 15 or three score he or she was an old man or woman, just waiting for the sun to set. But, no more! That age is just the beginning of another cycle in life.

And, so with Marion. The century mark was passed several years ago. Another day has dawned.

Marion is looking forward. There is a new atmosphere. One can feel the new spirit in the air. There is a quickened step, a spirit of rivalry. There is an optimistic tone that is growing louder and louder.

People have come here from other cities and they have laughed at our feeble and decrepit streets, our weak traffic lights. These streets and lights were good in their day, of course; but in the years that have trod over them and past them—

BLUE LAW SABBATH CLOSES BUSINESS

Restaurants Close, Buses Stop, When Justice of Peace Clamps on Lid

Westwood, N. J., June 11—Residents of this village after a taste yesterday afternoon of a real, old-fashioned Blue Law Sabbath, were looking forward to next Sunday when, according to Justice of the Peace E. Alan Meyer, "the town is going to be closed so tight, it will squeak."

Meyer, who is also a theater owner, was arrested earlier in the day and paid a $10 fine for exhibiting movies on Sunday. Then things began to happen. Invoking a village act of 1877, Meyer started in to arrest everybody who wasn't either going to or coming from church.

He even issued a summons to his own wife when she drove down town in the family automobile. Restaurants and stores were closed and all traffic, including interurban buses, halted. Next Sunday, Meyer says, he's going to close the telephone exchange and stop the Erie Railroad train on its way through the village.

The Princess Xenia is piloted by Capt. C. D. Barnard. There is also a relief pilot in addition to the eight passenger.

AWAIT ARRIVAL OF MELLON FOR FINAL ACTION

Secretary of Treasury Holds Key to Republican Convention

WILL OPEN TUESDAY

Curtis and Watson Leading Drive Against Commerce Head

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

Kansas City, June 11—The real work of trying to "Stop Hoover" got under way today as incoming trains poured into Kansas City the hundreds of delegates with whom the decision ultimately rests.

"He will be stopped," asserted the spokesmen of the hard-pressed allies.

"He can't be stopped," countered the Hoover managers. "It will be Hoover on the first or second ballot."

It is into this situation, with the lines drawn taut, that Andrew W. Mellon will step late today. No school goom ever waited more expectantly for the teacher than does this Republican national convention await the coming of the shy, taciturn little leader from Pennsylvania.

It is his convention. He holds the key. If he nods his head one way it will be Hoover. If he nods another way it probably won't be Hoover. It may, in that event, be Coolidge, Hughes, or any of the struggling and embittered allies against the subject candidate.

79 Are Necessary

The 79 votes from Pennsylvania are necessary for Hoover. Without them he might be nominated, but it is the judgment of all the leaders in Kansas City that he won't be if Mellon withholds the Keystone delegation. Given Pennsylvania it will be all over. The Hoover managers can count 450 votes without any from Pennsylvania or New York. They are assured of 20 odd from New York, and Pennsylvania's would push him across the 545 necessary mark with votes to spare.

The allies are struggling desperately against the seeming inevitability of Hoover's nomination. Like the allies of 10 years ago their backs are against the wall. They are hammering steadily on the defeatist line of attack and are engendering in the process hard feelings that may bloom in November to somebody's discomfiture.

The direction of the drive against Hoover was turned over today to Senator Charles Curtis and Senator James E. Watson, both candidates in their own right. These two veterans of many national conventions and many years of political maneuvering share the leadership of the big offensive against Hoover. And if he is ultimately stopped it will be largely their handiwork.

"This convention," said Curtis, in a bristling anti-Hoover statement, "cannot afford to nominate on the head of the ticket anyone for whom the party will be on the defensive from the day he is named until the close of the polls in November."

"The Congress that has just adjourned made a splendid record. On this record and the record of administra-

CENTER SEARCH FOR 5 ALLEGED BANDITS

Quintet Held in Train Holdup Make Getaway from Illinois Jail

Chicago, June 11—Search for Charles "Limpy" Cleaver, alleged leader of the $123,000 Grand Trunk mail robbery, and his four pals who made a sensational escape from the Du Page County Jail at Wheaton, Ill., centered in Chicago today.

It is believed the five desperadoes are being hidden by gangster allies in underworld syndicates.

The jail break was dramatic. Yesterday morning William Edgeton, 62, a deputy sheriff, was standing guard over the desperadoes' cell. As his back was turned, one of the prisoners reached through the bars with a makeshift blackjack and struck him over the head.

As Edgeton staggered the men grabbed him and beat him unconscious. They took his keys and unlocked the cell door. Stepping into the corridor they lifted the limp body of the deputy and carried him into the cell, locking him in.

The desperadoes then fled into the sheriff's office, seized three shotguns and a Thompson sub-machine gun and fled to the jail yard. There they climbed into Edgeton's automobile and drove away.

New York State May Vote as Unit for Coolidge as Result of Feud; Vanguard of Farmers Descend on K. C.

KANSAS CITY, June 11—the bitter feud has become the feud between the Coolidge and Hoover forces in the New York delegation to the Republican national convention that today there was talk of invoking the unit rule and voting the Empire State's 90 delegates for the president on the first roll call.

Charles D. Hilles, national committeeman, and George K. Morris, state chairman, who have been leading the fight to renominate the president, have been joined by former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. They have more than enough votes to carry the unit rule on the New York delegation, but they refuse to discuss such a possibility.

The vanguard of the farmers' "big parade" hastened into the Republican convention city today.

Farmers proclaiming their devotion for a farmers friend in the Republican ranking years collected and with blaring blatant determination on the first day were overwhelmed up by the shrieking traffic of a crowding city.

The Hoover supporters dismissed the appearance of dissension therein with the word "politics" while the lenders of the farmers of the "allies" entered the lectern in the hope that the fray would lengthen into the greatest orgy in convention history.

A great amusement park, transformed into a tourist headquarters, was made ready for the farm invasion. A visit to the park in the early morning hours revealed that competitively few had accepted the invitation to pitch their tents.

HIGHWAYS and BYWAYS

BY BOB ELLIOTT

DURING a recent gathering of old-time baseball fans here the query was raised as to what has become of old diamond stars who cavorted on Marion baseball fields of the past.

One old-timer blurted forth with the following more or less astounding question: "Have any of you fellows ever heard what has become of Jake Daubert?" A rather queer statement for a seasoned ball fan to make, was it not? Yet why should the average fan remember what has become of the old boys who were local idols in his day when new idols are being provided every day.

Just to while away a few spare minutes, let's muse around the fields of the past and find out what has become of a few of the old favorites.

FIRST we will take that grand old man of baseball, Jake Daubert. To those who have followed the game for a great many years that name signifies all that is fine in America's national game. Daubert became known to Marion fans through his fine work in the O. and P. league here. He did not linger long in the bushes for he was spotted by a scout and was sent to the "majors." There it did not take him long to earn a place and from then on he continued to shine in his role of one of the greatest of all first basemen. When at the zenith of his career death reached in and prevented him from making a continued record of service for himself in the game he loved so well.

TWO others whom we will mention here are ones who have made their mark and have faded at least partly into the black void of baseball obscurity. We have reference to Wilbur Cooper and Emmett Riley. Little need be said concerning Cooper for he made a place for himself in baseball annals that will never die. Cooper was a southpaw pitcher and one of the best that ever adorned a big league mound. Riley was a player who never saw the majors, yet was quite well known. At the present time we find Cooper retired, according to the reports, and Riley still in his favorite game managing a team in Zanesville.

* * *

Undoubtedly there are quite a few of the old fans who will recall many other diamond stars of the past who were worshipped by the young boys of their era as Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are now. Why not take your pen in hand and through the columns of The Star tell what has become of the stars of days gone by, especially those who entertained crowds here in Marion.

Eagles Trample on Celina; Win By 13-to-5 Scor

LOCALS SWAT BALL HARD AND BACK UP HURLERS IN FIELD

Get Five Runs at Start of Game; Aided by Celina's Errors

BY MARION CHENOWETH
Star Staff Writer

Falling into a hitting spree at the start of the game and giving its pitchers excellent support in the field, the Marion Eagles baseball team overpowered the Celina city baseball team by a score of 13 to 5 at the Lincoln Park diamonds yesterday afternoon.

Aided by half a dozen errors on the part of Celina infielders, Marion batters made every one of the 13 hits count for a run. The invading aggregation were able to connect with the ball nine times during the contest from the offerings of Stull who retired in the third inning and Longshore who finished the moundwork for the local squad.

Marion batters opened the game by counting for five runs and held the lead over the visiting nine for the entire fracas. Celina scored three in the first frame and came back with two in the second which made the teams total for the game. Marion scored all but two of its runs in the first four innings. The last two counters were chalked up in the seventh by the stickwork of Bacon and Mayo.

Sharrock's Big Day

Stull, twirling for the Eagles at the start of the game, allowed five hits and three free bases before he was replaced by Longshore in the third frame. Celina batters counted for four of the hits in the second but brilliant support in the field only permitted the visitors two runs.

Sharrock, Marion outfielder, had a great day at bat, collecting a homer, a triple and two singles out of five trips to the rubber. His four-base drive which cleared the left field fence came at the start of the third inning with none on base. In the next frame Sharrock scored two of his teammates with a long triple to center field. Pine, shortstop, batting in the cleanup position followed Sharrock for batting honors with three bingles, one of which was a triple.

Triple Brings in Three

Pine's triple drove in three runs to start the scoring in the opening inning. He scored a few seconds later on a hard drive by Sharrock who made the total five for the frame when Buckland attempted to steal second. Hits by Stull and Pine, a sacrifice by Rowan and a free base to Price gave Marion two runs in the second. Price, opened the fifth by gaining a base on an error and was scored by successive hits by Pine and Sharrock who also circled the bases when Celina athletics began booting the ball around the field. Bacon hit a double to place Rowan at third in the seventh so that he could steal home when he caught the Celina tosser napping.

Two free bases allowed Celina in the first inning by Stull proved costly to the Marion nine, both men scoring on Pine's error at shortstop and C. C. Gray's single. Hits by McElroy, Karch, Keckler and Davis gave the Celina aggregation two runs in second.

With two men on base, further scoring was prevented by a double play, Conroy to Bacon to Conroy. Following the third inning, only one Celina player succeeded in reaching third base.

TWO MORE HOMERS FOR BIG BAMBINO

Ruth Now Seven Games Ahead of Last Year's Record

New York, June 11—Working on the idea of hitting 'em a mile or not at all, Babe Ruth, baseball's master record-maker, has established a new kind of a mark for the boys to shoot at. Since May 28 he has made only six safe hits, but five of these were homers and the sixth a triple which was wanted when the Bambino tried to stretch it to four bases.

The sirdar of swat clouted homers Nos. 21 and 22 yesterday and is now seven games ahead of his last year's record. But the Yankees, who had won six straight, dropped an 8-to-6 decision to the tail-end Chicago White Sox, the first team which has stopped the Yanks on their western trip.

None Out Tribe

The Senators nosed out Cleveland yesterday, 6 to 5. Detroit swamped the Athletics, 9 to 2, and Sam Gray of the St. Louis Browns registered his tenth victory of the season in winning a brilliant 2-to-1 duel from Charley Ruffing of the Red Sox. Boston dropped to seventh place.

Cincinnati held on to first place in the National League when Luke May held the Giants to five hits and whitewashed them, 3 to 0. Horace Ford, Cincy shortstop, accepted his 127th chance without an error. Henry and Cantwell were the losing pitchers.

Led by the rejuvenated Rabbit Maranville, who made four hits in as many times at bat, the St. Louis Cardinals battered Brooklyn, 15 to 7, and took second place away from New York. Joe Bissonette of Brooklyn walloped his eleventh homer, tying Hack Wilson and Rogers Hornsby for home run hitting honors in the National League.

Other teams were idle.

Bill Tilden Off to Europe in Belief He Can Beat Lacoste and Cochet; Would Get Satisfaction, Cup

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, June 11 — The psychists would call it a "fixation" and prattle right along about cause and effect until they considered you had received your fifty (50) dollars ($) worth. But lawn tennis knows that Freud never was strong along the base line; that, in fact, he is only at his best overhead—over almost everyone's, to be exact. Lawn tennis, therefore, would prefer to consider the matter as coming under the head of an honest conviction.

Anyhow, it developed today, with the young man several days out on the bounding blue bosom of the Atlantic, that William T. Tilden is obsessed with the belief that he can and will best both Lacoste and Cochet in their impending meetings abroad, thus obtaining personal satisfaction and possession of the Davis Cup at one and the same time. They say this conviction has become almost a mania with Tilden.

Won't Even Talk

He is so wrapped up in the idea, it seems, that before leaving he declined to be interviewed about his chances, and of necessity America's, because he feared his notions might be confounded with egoism. But to personal friends, he made no secret of his confidence in being able to carry through the program outlined. It appears that his whole being is concentrated almost fiercely on this objective.

No dramatic spasms to confuse Tilden's interests this time; no successive appearances in small time tournaments until his stamina is burned down to the edge of the wick. Tilden, they say, is more "ready" for what is before him than he has been in recent years. Instead of exhaustive exhibitions, he has been conserving his energies by playing only when necessary in Davis cup contests. Instead of quick-change transitions from grease paint to flannels and return, he has been practicing strokes.

Bill's Own Way

His only concern, outside of the campaign abroad, is his incipient disagreement with a faction in the tennis association and even that may have been settled. They had a little dinner here the night the team sailed and it was whispered that the controversy, if ever it really reached that stage, might have been settled then. If it wasn't, the dissenting faction can make up its mind to the fact that Tilden will have his way, sooner or later and probably both.

The trouble concerns the dissenters' fear that Tilden will try to do too much, whereas he is inspired with the perfectly logical idea that the invasion will fall down only if he fails to do enough.

ONE OF BEST GAMES OF YEAR EXPECTED IN CONTESTS TODAY

Lee Street Presbyterians To Play Lutherans; Bartch Strengthens Team

One of the fastest recreational games this year will probably result when the Lee St. Presbyterians tangle with the Lutherans tonight at Lincoln Park in the sixth round of games in Sunday School League, No. 2.

The Lutherans have been traveling at a fast rate of speed since they added Bartch, a fine fast ball hurler, to their staff. Their lone reverse came early in the season before they had added Bartch to the staff. Ever since the addition they have been nearly unbeatable and have pulled several upsets in the league race. It would occasion no surprise should they defeat the fast traveling "Presbys". However, the aforementioned team has been pulling some pretty fast ones themselves and will give the Lutherans a good run for their money.

The remaining three games should prove to be rather one-sided contests although there is always room for argument. Forest Lawn and United Brethren are due to mix at Silk Mill diamond and without much doubt this game should find its way into the Prospect Street boys' pockets. The Epworth Juniors handed the U. B's their initial setback two weeks ago in a 2-1 struggle.

The Epworth Juniors, according to all the laws of baseball, should hand the Reformed outfit a sound thr in their battle at Central. The M ists will be reenforced by the ad of Hugh Shults to their pitching Shults should prove a valuable ber to the Epworth outfit.

In the remaining contest Chri should another Presbyterian No. their game, which is scheduled Fairfield diamond. The Chr team seems to have found itself a rather disastrous start, and s prove a pretty hard nut for t maining teams to crack.

However, the dope bucket always stay right side up, and scores may prove this forecast wrong.

COWAN SPECIALS

RECONDITIONING a well built, older home appeals to a growing number now-a-days, as it results in every modern convenience while retaining all the charm and dignity of former days. There are no old houses in Marion—the city is not old enough for that. But there is enough age to some of our closer in homes to give wonderful opportunities to those who appreciate the atmosphere of past generations. We have an especially interesting instance on Mt. Vernon-av. May we tell you about it. Cowan Realty Co.

Influence of Political Conventions in Evidence on Stock Exchange

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, June 11—Better support was extended to the industrial stocks on the board today, and, though the general trend of prices was downward, losses were comparatively small.

The influence of the political conventions and the credit contraction were in evidence in all sections of the market and the movement of prices was largely in the hands of the professionals. A large number of prominent outside traders have withdrawn from the market for the period of the political conventions and their future activities will be determined by platforms and personalities, particularly if co-operation and harmony can be made to prevail at Kansas City and Houston.

Rates called in funds from the coal loan market, but funds were in supply at 3 1-2 per cent. Bullish forces rallied in good form around U. S. Steel, and presented any wide reaction there. The "nervous shorts" were reported busily covering up last week's short selling commitments, and stocks were not too plentiful at the current level of prices.

Except for the sport in the technically-governed radio and a brief rally in General Motors, there was little or no deviation from the downward swing of prices in the first three hours. The speculative stocks, the motors and the coppers held their grounds better than in the three final sessions of last week, the oils reacted moderately and the rails recovered a point or two under the lead of New York Central.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 11—The bullish influence of the government crop report for June may not carry over through this week in the wheat market, but it should be lasting in rye, even if that grain does not move upward decidedly at once. In other words, although wheat may again turn downward under the influence of hedging the new Winter wheat crop, rye is not likely to sell below its recent bottom.

The government report caught the pit without wheat. The scramble to cover at the opening, over 4 cents higher at the top of the wide price range that prevailed, probably frightened off temporarily many prospective longs. They decided to wait for a setback.

Also the covering weakened the technical condition of the market. Again today wheat may be erractic and furnish a market dangerous on either side.

Meaning of Report

The bullishness of the government report on wheat was founded more on the difference from the figures expected than on anything in the figures themselves. The prospect in Canada is still too bearish to attract any outside buying here; and the reported damage in our Northwest is not convincing enough, perhaps, to make that a bullish incentive in the face of the approaching harvest of the Winter wheat.

From the Southwest, Kansas and Oklahoma, come estimates of an extremely heavy yield. Some forecasters insist that wheat production there will be so much larger than a year ago that it will offset the loss by Winter killing in the territory east of the Mississippi.

Buyers of cash wheat are likely to hold off on the first run of new wheat after harvest and hedging will put an added weight on the market. If that hedging catches the market without shorts it will probably have a good deal of effect in weighing down prices, even if the weakness is only temporary.

The market will probably be subject to all the sudden changes that are usual at this time of year and which show what it usually termed a "weather market."

Corn shows none of the strength that it ought to display to hold bulls to their belief in greatly higher prices next month. Beyond the possibility of heavy buying for delivery of the nearby futures, there is little reason at this time to expect an advancing corn market.

PROSPECT TOWNSHIP RABIES SCARE ENDED

Dog Killed After Making Attack, Not Infected, State Officials Report

Rumors of threatened rabies epidemic in Prospect Township were quieted today when Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner stated that a dog killed near Prospect last Thursday was not infected with the disease.

Dr. Sifritt made the announcement after receiving a report from the laboratory of the State Department of Health at Columbus. The health commissioner took the head of the animal to Columbus for examination.

The dog was killed by a group of farmers after it moved to attack a man who had attempted to drive it away from a herd of cattle which it had been running.

No reports of additional rabies cases have been received from Tully Township according to health officials. All canines in the township were placed under a 60-day quarantine when it was found that a vagrent dog was infected with rabies.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Markets were quiet here today with dealers restocking with fresh supplies following unusual heavy buying Saturday. In spite of the rain, buying, which had been light nearly all week, was unusually heavy Saturday, with specials being offered in many of the seasonable fruits and vegetables. Prices this morning, however, were normal and both fruits and vegetables were being offered at about the same prices that prevailed last week.

New potatoes offered at from 45 to 47 cents a peck Saturday, were being quoted at six pounds for 25 cents today. Old potatoes are holding at 30 cents a peck. An increase in demand of new potatoes is reported by dealers as the price continues to drop. Dealers were carrying fairly large supplies of cabbage selling readily at eight cents a pound. Green beans and peas were only fairly plentiful. The quality was ordinary and dealers report sales light at 20 cents a pound.

Leaf vegetables were plentiful. Leaf lettuce is holding at 18 cents, head lettuce at 10 and 15 cents and kale at two pounds for 25 cents. Spinach continued cheap, good quality stock selling at two pounds for 15 cents today.

Watermelons were scarce today. Only a few were on the market and were selling at from $1 to $1.50 each. Strawberries were also less plentiful and prices were being quoted at from 18 to 25 cents a quart. Cool weather is holding back the homegrown varieties, growers say. Pineapples for canning continue to sell at from $1.25 to $2.50 a dozen. Cantaloupes continue plentiful and good quality varieties were selling at 15 cents today.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION HALL

HAD there been one or two horses in view to lend atmosphere, the automobile auction sale held by the police department at the city barns on Owens-st, Saturday afternoon, would have presented a striking resemblance to horse sales of past years. The sale, an annual event with the police, also included other miscellaneous articles.

Prospective buyers began to arrive early and by the time the auctioneer with his: "Well men, have you looked them all over," arrived on the scene, more than 200 had gathered for the sale. Instead of examining teeth and eyes and looking over legs for defects with little discussion as to pedigree and much as to staying qualities and disposition, as would have been the case at a horse sale, "here was much peering into the engines and working of gears and comments on transmissions, differentials, carburetors and ignition systems.

No Tests Made

Unlike horse sales, there were no demonstrations of the cars ability to travel. The auctioneer was too wise for that. The five cars were lined up in the yard and the buyer purchased the machine with the chances of getting it home, thrown in.

The five cars, which had been acquired by the police through liquor charges or left on their hands as unclaimed security for fines, were sold in a short time.

A Chrysler touring car was bought by Paul Berringer, Cleveland-av, for $43, the highest price for which any of the cars sold. A Stevens touring car sold to C. M. Simmons for $12.50 while a "baby-blue" Ford touring car was secured by R. W. Coast, Arlington-av on his bid of $5. A Maxwell touring car sold for $38 to Dale Douce and a Buick roadster to M. Brumfield for $10.

Five bicycles to be sold were the center of much interest by a group of small boys who gravely speculated on the possibilities of being able to buy one for "about 50 cents." Their hopes faded, however, when the first wheel up sold for $9.50. The lowest price secured for any of the wheels was $2.75, while the others sold at $3.75, $4 and $4.50. A number of automobile tires and large crocks, the latter having been gathered in various raids on stills, were also sold.

CELANESE FABRICS

Celanese Fabrics are a new kind of textile joining the familiar silks, cottons, woolens and rayon fabrics.

They look like Silk, they launder like Silk, they wash like Cotton — but they are neither Silk nor Cotton.

Like Silk, Celanese Fabrics have many different weaves. We carry the Celanese Chiffon Voiles in beautiful printed designs.

Celanese will pot shrink—nor stretch. They iron easily, and dry with amazing rapidity.

Voiles

Very interesting are the fancy voiles this season, so many are patterned after the newly printed silks. You will find them sheer and resembling the silk georgettes. They drape so nicely and the wear is satisfactory. 40 inches wide.

PENNSYLVANIANS ARE TO CAUCUS TONIGHT

Mellon, Probably Holding Solution to G. O. P. Riddle, Speeds to K. C.

Kansas City, June 11—The "key" to the Republican party's presidential riddle was speeding across the midwestern plains today as three special trains brought Pennsylvania's 79 electoral votes to the convention.

The delegation, headed ostensibly by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon but under the dual command of Mellon and Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, was expected to provide a solution to the tangled presidential situation shortly after its arrival tonight. The delegation will caucus at 8 o'clock tonight on its choice for the Republican nomination and when its preference is announced, the convention riddle may be solved.

The Pennsylvanians were expected to cast a complimentary vote for their governor, John' H. Fisher, on the first ballot and thereafter go to their real choice. His name may be Calvin Coolidge, Andrew W. Mellon, Herbert Hoover, Charles Curtis or James E. Watson.

A vote for either Coolidge or Mellon, it is believed, would not influence the convention much one way or the other. A vote for Curtis or Watson, however, would be expected to eliminate Hoover and insure the nomination of the favored senator. A vote for Hoover would be certain to close the convention Wednesday night with the secretary of commerce as the Republican nominee.

HERMAN IREY IN RACE FOR SHERIFF

Files Declaration of Candidacy for G. O. P. Nomination; Resides on Farm

Herman Irey, farmer residing on the Green Camp pk, two miles west of Marion, is the latest entry in the race for sheriff, having filed his declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination with the county board of elections today.

Irey was born in Pleasant township, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Irey, 37 years ago and has always been a resident of Marion County with the exception of four years, spent in the West.

Although always active in Republican affairs, this is his first bid for public office. During the time that he lived on the farm of D. R. Crissinger, south of Marion, he served as Republican central committeeman in Pleasant township.

Mr. Edgar will hold the building as an annuity at five per cent for a limited period after which it will become the property of the university. A tablet honoring Mr. and Mrs. Edgar was unveiled at Edgar Hall following the luncheon.

B. J. SHELTON
Experience is regarded as an important qualification for positions of responsibility in private life and should be fully as essential in public work.
B. J. Shelton, who filed his declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer Saturday, will base his campaign largely upon his record in that office and the fact that his experience places him in position to give the public thoroughly efficient and economical service.
Investigation will show that during his time as treasurer, new methods of tax collection and other details of office management have been introduced, resulting in improved service at minimum cost.
He invites inquiry into his record and solicits support of all Republican voters of the county in the August primary.

A STATEMENT

RELATING TO THE FUTURE OF THE CHRYSLER CORPORATION and DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

The widespread public interest in recent events affecting the Chrysler Corporation and Dodge Brothers, Inc., deserves an authentic and official statement and an announce regarding the future of these two corporations.

Subject to the approval of stockholders, Dodge Brothers, Inc., will be acquired by the Chrysler Corporation, the plan of amalgamation having been recommended by their respective boards of directors.

Each of these great institutions will retain its identity, and will continue, as heretofore, to produce and market its own product in accordance with the highest progressive standards from which motor car buyers the world over have previously benefited.

Each will benefit from the consummation of a plan which unites such tremendous resources in material, manufacturing facilities, financial power and manufacturing genius.

Dodge Brothers will continue to be Dodge Brothers, and Chrysler will be Chrysler. Their products will be separate and distinct and will be continued in production without interruption. Their sales organizations will be continued except as they shall mutually share in the advantages of the consolidation.

Both public and dealers may look forward to the greater benefits which the consolidation of such tremendous resources will produce—and the men identified with these businesses may be assured of a stable and definite future, based on the progressiveness which has been responsible for the success of two great companies.

C. H. LEWIS QUITS RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Three Major Contenders Left in Contest for Republican Nomination

Withdrawal of Charles H. Lewis of Harpster from the field of candidates for the Republican nomination for governor leaves three major contenders for the place at the head of the state ticket.

Announcement that he will not be a candidate was made by Lewis, Saturday night, after considerable work had been done to build up an organization in his behalf. He made formal announcement of his candidacy several weeks ago.

Comment coming from some sources regarding his candidacy caused the Harpster man to change his plans, he said. He is president of a corporation which markets processes for treatment of municipal and industrial wastes and he stated that "comment has already been made that perhaps I desire election in order to control the department concerned in the pollution of streams and waterways of the state."

"Such misunderstanding might be harmful and embarrassing to the party as well as to myself, and therefore I shall not file declaration of candidacy," Lewis announced.

At the time he announced his intention of seeking election as governor, Lewis said, he announced that he would be willing to let the state central committee and county committee chairmen pick a candidate for the nomination.

"I am sorry to say that neither the party committees nor any of the candidates have seen fit to accept my challenge for the party welfare," he said.

Lewis, who is a former lieutenant governor, was prominently mentioned as a prospective candidate for governor two years ago but remained out of the race in deference to Myers Y. Cooper.

The three leading candidates for the Republican nomination remaining in the field at this time are Cooper, of Cincinnati, Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, and Attorney General Edward C. Turner, Columbus. Harry Shanley, Hardin County farmer, is also listed as a probable contender.

MABEL NOT TO HOP FOR EUROPE TODAY

Friendship Plane with Amelia Earhart Also Delayed by Weather

Curtiss Field, N. Y., June 11—After surveying weather conditions at dawn, Charles A. Levine, sponsor of Miss Mabel Boll's proposed transatlantic flight in Levine's monoplane Columbia, announced that the flight would not start today. All preparations had been made for a hop-off between five and 6 o'clock this morning but unfavorable weather reports caused the "Queen of Diamonds" and her pilots Oliver Le Boutillier and Capt. Arthur Argles, to change their plans.

The flight will not start until tomorrow at the earliest, Levine announced. The fliers may head directly for Europe instead of first flying to Old Orchard, Me., as had been planned originally. The two pilots are in favor of a direct flight if the runway at Roosevelt field is dry enough to permit the Columbia to take off with a full load of gasoline.

Trepassey, N. F., June 11—After more than a week's delay, Miss Amelia Earhart, Wilmer Stultz and Lou Gordon were today still awaiting favorable weather for the start of their projected flight to England in the trimotored Fokker monoplane Friendship.

Conditions were slightly improved with visibility better over the Atlantic and the winds were favorable. Fog still hovered over the harbor here. The fliers may start today.

MARION CONSIDERED FOR MAGICIANS' MEET

May Get 1930 Convention of International Brotherhood; Lima Chosen for 1929

W. W. Durbin, Kenton, was reelected president of the International Brotherhood of Magicians at the closing session of the three-day convention at Lima Saturday. Lima also was given the 1929 convention.

Members of the convention and publicity committee of the Marion Chamber of Commerce made overtures to the Brotherhood during the convention in the hope of bringing the 1929 meeting to Marion. The organization has an unwritten rule, however, of returning to the same city for a second year.

Marion was given a promise, however, that consideration would be given this city when the 1930 convention is awarded. Should Marion get the 1930 convention it is probable that it also would have the magicians performing on the streets of the city also in 1931.

Horrors and Suffering in Confederate Army Prisons Described by Marion Veteran, Captive Eight Months

Editor's Note—This is the seventh of a series of accounts relating to the experiences of Marion's Civil War veterans, representatives of what is now reverently referred to as "The Fading Line of Blue."

BY HALLIE HAUCK

"SOME day I'm going to write an account of my wartime prison experiences, and what a story they will make," declared William G. Balding, Civil War Veteran, when interviewed at his home, 577 N. Greenwood-st.

Mr. Balding spent eight months in Confederate prisons, and knows what went on inside of them. Some of the incidents he related during the interview were intensely interesting, but were so blood-curdling that only in a book made up exclusively of such experiences would they be suitable. In a peace time account such as this, they would be out of place.

Mr. Balding was born in Woodsfield, Monroe County, Aug. 10, 1844, and will celebrate his eighty-fourth birthday this year. Later he and his family moved to Van Wert, in Van Wert County, where they lived until the Civil War broke out.

At the first call for three-year men, Mr. Balding enlisted Sept. 7, 1861, and served in military campaigning all during the war, except for his term in prison.

Soon after his enlistment his company left for Camp Bartley, four miles north of Mansfield, where it remained for three weeks. From there it went to Camp Denison, where the government added the touch that made real soldiers of the recruits.

Each soldier was given his suit of blue and his musket, which Mr. Balding fondly refers to as "the old musket."

"We soon found out what it was to be a soldier when we got into the 15th Ohio Volunteer Infantry," the veteran relates.

From camp the company took the cars for Cincinnati and crossed over the Ohio River to Covington, Ky., square into the enemy's territory.

Talks of "Johnnies"

Mr. Balding never talks of the Southern soldiers as Confederates. To him, they are always "Johnnies."

"We diddn't see any 'Johnnies,' here, so we started for Nashville, Tenn., where we had a little 'brush' with the enemy."

At that time, General U. S. Grant was in command of the Western forces. He had taken several places and pushed on the South, up the Tennessee River to Pittsburgh Landing and Shiloh Church.

It was here, that Mr. Balding's father, who had enlisted in the 46th O. V. I., was killed. William's youngest brother, who was only 13, had enlisted in this division as a drummer boy and Mr. Balding, Sr., enlisted to look out for his welfare. There was also another Balding enlisted in the army, and he died of starvation at a Texas camp.

Grant commanded the Army of the Cumberland, the Army of the Tennessee and the Army of the Ohio. Mr. Balding's unit belonged to the Army of the Cumberland, commanded by General Buell.

General Buell was back at Summerset, Ky., and had to make a forced march and did not reach the battlefield until the second day, "but we sure got there just in time, as all of General Grant's men were driven back on the river bank," relates Mr. Balding.

Buell reached the field with his 30,000 men, placed them along the bloody field about 4 o'clock in the morning and fought all day, finally driving the enemy from the field.

Buell and his army were present at the siege of Corinth, Miss., and here the "Johnnies" got behind the Union forces.

"We followed them all the way back to Kentucky, and caught them at Perryville, where we gave them a good drubbing, and then on to Stone River, where we fought another army of Johnnies," the Marion veteran says.

For four days this battle lasted, but finally the enemy was driven from the field.

Taken Prisoner

Mr. Balding was in the famous battle of Chickamauga, that lasted for four days. Mr. Balding was taken prisoner and sent to Libby Prison at Richmond, Va.

Here it will be interesting to state that several tobacco factories, Libby's Scott's and Castle Thunder, were transformed into southern prisons, to take care of the Union men who were captured.

Mr. Balding was with General "Pap" Thomas at the battle of Chickamauga. Generals Longstreet and Steward, of the Confederate forces, charged the Union ranks three times during one period of the fight, and towards the last of the battle, Thomas ordered his men to "fire by regiments."

As the southern men advanced, the first regiment rose up and fired and rolled over, to start loading their guns. Immediately the second regiment started its guns and the action continued until all the regiments had fired in their turn. Then the process began over again, for by this time the first troops had had time to reload and were ready to raise up and resume the attack.

Later, when one of the Confederate men was asked what the advance was for he replied that they had been sent to capture northern men but had not succeeded on their mission.

"It is an actual fact," states Mr. Balding, "that one of the 'Johnnies' told me that after that gruelling 'relay of fire' the southern men were piled up seven deep. Most of them were killed, and the rest wounded.

The Marion veteran tells with great wonder of the strange way fate had of working in one Union army. General August Willich, commander of a northern army, and his lieutenant colonel were bitter enemies in the old country, but at the battle of Missionary Ridge, they fought side by side, with one common purpose—to keep the Union in fact.

Before going into some of his prison life, there are several other points of interest in Mr. Balding's story, which, though lacking definite dates, are interesting to hear.

"It may appear seemingly impossible to a great many people," the old veteran states, "but actually, men in some of those Southern prison camps crawled out over the dead line so that they would be shot and end their misery."

Guards were stationed along the fort walls, and any one passing outside these walls, unless Confederate men, was immediately shot.

"Their suffering was so great that rather than stand it any longer, they were willing to pass that fatal line and be shot down," Mr. Balding says.

Thirteen thousand Union men starved to death or died of thirst at Andersonville. There was no water to drink except that which came from the sewers of the city. Then one day, when the situation was most desperate, up through the ground came the sweetest and purest of water from some hidden spring deep in the earth. This flow of water which the men declared was an act of God, has been known since as "Providence Spring."

Baskets of Money

"One dollar in Union money was worth $10 in Confederate money. And it was nothing to see a woman going down the street with a market basket of Confederate money with which to buy her evening meal," recalls Mr. Balding.

It was lucky for the Marion soldier that he had over $100 when he was put into Libby prison. He was privileged to go to the prison doors and buy food from the hucksters.

"I always waited, though, until I had exchanged my good Northern money for that worthless Southern currency before I started to bargain with the men, for if I'd paid for my food with Union greenbacks, I'd have been mobbed," he says.

"I usually bought $3 or $4 worth of bread, eggs and milk, everytime I purchased supplies, and it was pitiful to hear the pleadings of the poor starved prisoners until I had time to give them some of the food."

Once a week, prison officials visited the men and had a "shakedown" for greenbacks.

"I always slipped mine from under my belt and hid 'em when I knew the officers were coming," recalled Mr. Bolding with a laugh.

The bed in Libby Prison Mr. Balding remembers as one of tobacco stems. Once in a while the stems were turned and loosened.

When he went into prison he weighed 102½ pounds, and when the nurse weighed him when he was removed to Jarvis Hospital, Baltimore, he tipped the scales at 90 pounds.

The Union captives were put on a Northern boat and taken to this hospital where they were given every care. Only three men out of the 590 on the boat could walk down the gangplank, Sept. 20, 1864 Mr. Balding was discharged from the Union army, with memories of McPherson, Sheridan, Sherman, Lincoln, Grant and many others of importance to recall for just such interviews as this.

April 9, 1865 Mr. Balding married Miss Amy Newman in Morgan County and is the father of seven children. His third wife was Mrs. Lourina Weir, 265 Patten-st. Mr. Balding and Mrs. Weir were married by Dr. Jesse Swank, of Dayton, former pastor of Epworth M. E. Church.

Mr. Balding is color bearer of Cooper Post, No. 117, local Chapter of the Grand Army of the Republic.

BUILDING PERMITS DROP DURING WEEK

Total of $1,105 Issued Here Is Far Below Figure of Preceding Week

With but nine permits issued last week providing for building construction estimated at $1,105, building activities showed a decided slump from the preceding week, when 19 permits for work estimated at $15,640.00 were issued.

A permit for a $10,000 factory addition issued to the Alloy Cast Steel Co. and a permit for a dwelling to cost $5,000 taken out by Carl Schell, swelled the total of the preceding week, while last week listed no large permits. Seven permits for garages of an estimated value of $755, one for a porch to cost $200 and another for an addition to a dwelling to cost $100 were included in the permits issued last week.

Rain has held up construction on the building being erected for Cussins and Fearn, of Columbus, on E. Center-st. The sidewalls had been partly erected when the work was stopped by rain. A small army of carpenters are at work on the interior of the new Palace Theater at W. Center and Campbell-sts. Lath is being placed in the rooms on the second floor in the front section of the building, which are to be occupied as office rooms.

Gas--The Builder

Gas has advanced civilization. It has given to homes comforts that would not have been dreamed of fifty years ago. It has lightened the burden of housework—made possible the growth of industries—developed villages into cities—created employment for labor.

The city with the adequate gas supply does not have to bid for industry. That is the reason Your Gas Company is so eager to be able to assure Marion of a permanent supply of gas. It wants to help Marion grow—to prosper. All it asks is the recognition of the fact that GAS IS WORTH MORE.

ARREST AUTOISTS ON INTOXICATION CHARGE

Two Local Men Accused of Driving While Under Influence of Liquor

Two arrests on charges of driving automobiles while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, were made by police over the week-end.

Ralph Myers, 928 W. Center-st, Bowers, was arrested on Hocking-st shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday night after the machine he was driving had collided with a Yellow Taxi Cab. Neither car was badly damaged.

Early Sunday morning the police received calls from residents of Sawyer-st who said a car in the ditch. Patrolmen who answered the call found Ralph Crissinger, 144 Waterloo-st, driving a Ford touring car out of the ditch, they reported. Crissinger was held under arrest on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated and was taken to the Albert Hotel garage with a broken headlight to await payment of the damages.

Both Myers and Crissinger are being held at police headquarters pending a hearing before Municipal Judge W. K. Bonsall this afternoon.

SIDELIGHTS ON K. C. CONVENTION

Borah Denies Report He Will Second Hoover's Nomination

Mr. Coolidge is definitely out of the running.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur arrived here today to attend the Republican convention.

"Does it look like Hoover?" he was asked.

"Well," he replied, cautiously, "I'm not saying."

"The "draft Coolidge" movement gained impetus today with the arrival of Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago, who controls the anti-Lowden bloc in the Illinois delegation.

"I am for Coolidge," said the mayor. "He has been Chicago's good friend, also the friend of the whole Mississippi Valley. I'm for him."

Representatives of veterans' organizations arrived here today with a demand that an ex-service man be nominated for vice president on the Republican ticket. They will carry the same demand to Houston.

John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, listed the following as acceptable vice presidential candidates:

Hanford McNider, ex-assistant secretary of war; Col. Theodore Roosevelt, ex-assistant secretary of navy; Rep. Hamilton Fish, Republican of New York; Dwight Davis, secretary of war; Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, and Gen. J. G. Harbord, head of the Radio Corporation.

Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, Massillon, O., who once led a famous march to Washington to protest against prevailing economic conditions, doesn't believe times have changed much for the better since his great trek.

"As a matter of fact, times are worse," said General Coxey, here today to watch the Republicans nominate a presidential candidate.

The arrival of Everett Sanders, secretary to President Coolidge, today revived rumors that administration leaders would seek to renominate the president despite his "do not choose to run" statement.

Sanders, however, discounted the reports by announcing he came as a private citizen, merely to "see the convention."

One clergyman says: "That's not fit to be sung by the congregation of a Christian church.

YET, if we started, that congregation and its clergyman would be all for fighting, anxious to hear of enemies slain. The main difficulty would be convincing the post-war crop of young men that they should go to sit in trench mud, while others sang hymns and prayed for them.

CORRESPONDENTS in Kansas City, nearly all believe the first big block of votes will be cast for President Coolidge. Tomorrow will be an interesting day in the country's political history and some may be surprised as they have not been surprised before. It may comfort you to know that the average delegate is in the dark as completely as you are.

SENATOR WATSON, who believes that he would about fill the bill, complains that "Hoover and Governor Smith have nothing to say for themselves." Possibly they are leaving the "saying" to the voters and to their friends.

Calvin Coolidge has convinced the public that a man may be wisely economical in speech as in other things.

JUST KIDS PICNIC "HOWLING SUCCESS"

Park Officials Prepared for Entertainment of 4,000 Guests

From Charles Isaly, of the Isaly Dairy Co., he got 2,000 Klondikes. And, then from Monroe & Ross he got another 2,000 while the Marion Coca Cola Co. promised 4,000 bottles of "coke" for the kids. Van Atta Hardware Co. then came through with several thousand noise-making squawkers. What a day!

Well, those youngsters and many of them with their mothers and dads, began to clamor for entrance into the park long before the park attendant knew it was Monday morning. And by the time that 10 o'clock arrived there was bedlam over at the airplane swing where the kids were exchanging their buttons for their tickets to the various rides. You should have heard them.

No six boiler factories could have made nearly as much noise.

Among the first children to be taken care of were those from the Marion County Children's Home, who were made honorary members of the club by Manager Scherff.

No Time Wasted

And, as each youngster got his tickets he bolted straight for everyplace at once—just like the sheik who jumped on his elephant and galloped off in all six directions. And, then the day of days began. They rode everything, everything.

Then, Addison Bain got them together at various times for games, baseball games, races, contests of all kinds. And, how they went to it.

One of the features was the raising of a bird-house, a 28-room affair. All the kids were on hand to cheer as the bird-house went up.

And, the Boy Scouts, under the direction of Scout Executive Walter C. Brown, were there to guard the club members and to see that all went well. They even had their emergency tent up in case of any accidents.

But, what a party this was. It was really the biggest affair ever given in Marion for boys and girls and was a reward for their watchfulness in "looking up and down before crossing the street."

FOOS MURDER CASE IS SET FOR JULY 9

Date for Everett Koon Hearing Fixed After He Enters Plea of Not Guilty

He was returned to his cell in the county jail where he has been held since the murder of Mr. Foos.

One indictment involving two counts was returned against Koon by a special grand jury last Wednesday. The indictment charges "murder and murder while attempting to commit and committing a robbery."

The indictment is a charge of murder in the first degree and carries a penalty for conviction of electrocution or life imprisonment, the latter if the jury recommends mercy.

It will be two weeks Tuesday since Mr. and Mrs. Foos were attacked in their home. Mr. Foos died in the Marion City Hospital as a result of injuries sustained when he was beaten about the face and head with a rock in the hands of the assailant.

Mrs. Foos, who was also injured in the attack, is recovering at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. W. Bird, of Likens-rd.

After beating the aged Mr. Foos into insensibility the intruder robbed him of approximately $100.

Shortly after word of the attack was spread among the farmers living near the Foos home, Koon was captured near the Marion County fairgrounds. A posse of farmers, police and sheriff's officers made the capture.

Mrs. Bingham is also reported to be quite ill and it is on her account that the family had postponed their annual spring visit to Ohio. Burial will be in California.

CITY BRIEFS

HOOVER FIGHT GROWS ON EVE OF MEET

Arrival of Secretary of Treasury Mellon Awaited for Final Word

tion for the last four years our party can win the coming election if the candidate is a man for whom no apologies will be required."

Defeatist Campaign

That is the line of attack which the anti-Hoover directors are pursuing so vigorously—that Hoover will be a weak candidate against Al Smith in November. Every incoming delegate is button-holed and impressed with the difficulty of electing the secretary of commerce against Al Smith. The new arrivals are being told that he will lose the Middle West, and that against Smith in the populous and wet east he will get nowhere. And on top of that they add that he isn't a Republican, anyway, or wasn't eight years ago." It is a defeatist campaign with a vengeance.

Even Senator Jim Reed of Missouri, a Democrat, is helping the anti-Hoover cause along.

"I hope they do nominate Hoover," he said to a circle in the lobby of the Hotel Muehlebach. "Certainly nothing could be sweeter from our point of view, for he will be the easiest man to beat they can put up."

How much effect this line of attack is having is, of course, conjectural. The Hoover delegates regard it with dismay and downright anger. Ex-Congressman James W. Good of Iowa, the generalissimo of the Hoover camp, says it is "hitting below the belt," and that "it is unfair," and "unworthy of Republicans."

Must "Sell" Mellon

To which the anti-Hoover allies respond that it is "just being bluntly and brutally candid."

Perhaps it doesn't matter so much, anyway, whether the delegates are impressed or not. The principal job of the coalition leaders is to "sell" the idea to A. W. Mellon and a few of the others who have the convention in their keeping. A frontal assault on the diminutive treasury head will be launched this afternoon upon his arrival here.

In their desperation to "stop Hoover," the allies are keeping the draft-Coolidge movement well up in the foreground. And that is another thing for which they are anxiously awaiting the arrival of Mr. Mellon. They expect him to bring the word, definitely and finally, as to whether Mr. Coolidge would choose to run if the convention goes ahead and nominates him, anyway. They believe that he knows. They also believe he knows whether Charles E. Hughes meant it when he said that he was not a candidate and would not accept a nomination if it were made. They know that Hughes was the original first choice of both Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Mellon, and to the allies it is "anybody but Hoover—anything to beat Hoover."

Confidence Amazing

The confidence of the allies that "it won't be Hoover"—in the face of the mathematics of the situation—is literally amazing. Every report from the east has indicated that Mr. Mellon would throw his Pennsylvanians to Hoover on the second ballot. But the allied leadership won't believe these reports. Senator Watson said Saturday and reiterated today that he has "all the assurance a man can have" that Hoover will not get the Pennsylvania vote.

There the situation rested today, 24 hours in advance of the convention opening. The sorely pressed anti-Hoover leaders have only four more days to accomplish their purposes. In that time it will be decided whether it will or will not be Hoover. The outlook on Monday morning is that it will be Hoover.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS IN EVIDENCE HERE

Marion Now in "Heads Up" Era, Improvement Activities Indicate

is rising, an edifice that promises to be a thing of beauty on one of the city's most advantageous residential district sites.

The Dugan Building is up and occupied on E. Center-st. And, the beams and rafters are stretching upward for another structure across the alley on the Frue estate ground. Of course, these buildings are not skyscrapers, but they are new and creditable looking, a tremendous improvement over the structures that once stood there. They show the spirit of the city.

Other improvements are rumored and discussed for the center of the business district—improvements that will be made as time goes on.

Down W. Center-st one hears the noise of building and sees structures taking form. The most important, of course, is the new Palace Theater. With a September opening its goal the building is going up with extraordinary speed. The theater promises to draw people to Marion from miles around.

Close to the Palace is another small but new block, the Curtis Building. And a few more steps west and there is the new terminal of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Railroad Co., soon to be opened.

Across the street from the Palace and next to Hotel Harding a three-story building is promised by J. W. Thew, local realtor. Uptown other remodelling work will be done on structures that are to be occupied by other concerns that are now in them. And, the Fahey Banking Co. plans a new front, changes inside and a greater depth for its room.

W. G. Kraus has announced a new building on W. Center-st, to be erected later in the year.

A turn-up W. Center-st brings closer realization of the often promised new paving. And a new lighting system.

Rivalry Helpful

Uptown business men, east of Prospect-st, eyeing the improvements of W. Center-st, realize they must also go forward. The improvements are creating a spirit of rivalry. Recent that rivalry in turn created a new improvement association with the paving of E. Center and Main-sts and the installation of a new lighting system its goal.

Motorists are today driving through business district lights, the latest improvement in this method of traffic control. It is the beginning of a system which cannot be bested in any other city.

The Board of Education purchases a site in Oakland Heights on which it is proposed to ultimately erect a new junior high school building. And, it is announced that this purchase is only a part of a program of expansion for the city schools.

Marion factories are going ahead. The unsteadiness that followed beneficial changes in the city's industry has lowed before steadiness and progressiveness.

There is more and more talk of Marion's need for an airport, a transportation necessity that must come. Sentiment for this airport is crystallizing. It will come.

The city fights for improvements, this section and that. More improvements. The rivalry that will make Marion. Better streets, better buildings and a better Marion.

And, guided above all by the voice of Marion, is the Marion Civic Association, with tremendous power for good.

This is the spirit that Marion finds itself fostering today. It is a spirit that cannot mean anything but better days. It is the spirit that will take Marion to the top of the ladder.

Left Turns Not Understood by All.

Away back in early Latin times we believe it was that somebody remarked that "experience teaches," and in so doing he stated a truth which, in one form or another, has come down to us through the ages.

We have had but a few days' experience locally with left turns, yet that experience has taught us that the regulations regarding left turns are not so well understood by some motorists as they should be. It was but a matter of a few hours after the new turn went into effect that lack of understanding or wilful misunderstanding of the left turns led to a collision, and there may have been others since.

The trouble seems to be that some motorists are inclined to cut corners, instead of driving past the first line of traffic, and many others do not understand the meaning of "passing through traffic at their own risk." It is manifest that some motorists are assuming that "passing through traffic at their own risk" means risk to themselves and risk to other motorists. But it means far more than that. It applies as well to the risk they take in passing through pedestrian traffic, the risk of injuring some pedestrian or pedestrians. When a motorist makes a left turn and drives against the red light after making the turn pedestrian traffic has the right-of-way, and he must see that he does not run down people crossing the street into which he turns. Were it otherwise, the pedestrian would have no right in the use of the street whatever.

The failure to advance with caution in working a way through pedestrian traffic has caused some decidedly active scrambling for safety by pedestrians during the last few days.

We have had a good deal to say about traffic matters, of late, but the time and space thus taken will be advantageously employed if it in any way helps to lessen the chances of accident to motorists and pedestrians. All of us will learn by experience, but it will do no harm to advance the realization of the danger in left turns, which manifestly work to the speeding up of traffic, unless the rules governing them are observed. Left turns demand the exercising of caution on the part of motorists and pedestrians alike.

Come on people, let's get together in the observance of the traffic regulations and work for the benefit and safety of all.

Dream of Herrick Realized.

Our ambassador to France, Myron T. Herrick, is soon to experience realization of his dream of many years of having all the American government offices in Paris housed under one roof instead of under ten, as at present, as the contract has been signed and approved for the purchase by the United States of the property of the Parisian club known as the Cercle de l'Union Artistique, a very fine example of the private hotel property surrounded by a beautiful garden so much coveted for residential purposes since the days of the Third empire.

The plan is to house the offices of the embassy, those of the Shipping board, the consulate general and half a dozen other representatives of our government in the newly-acquired property, which will necessarily have to be reconditioned and adapted to the new uses to which it is to be put.

Those familiar with that part of Paris, as most Americans who have visited the French capital are, will recall the property alike because of its surroundings, the beauty of its garden and the prominence of its location at the northwest corner of the Place de la Concorde, the world's greatest square. The building fronts on the Rue Boissy d'Anglas, the street one block beyond and separated only by the clubhouse of the Automobile club from the Rue Royale, the avenue leading up to the Church of the Madelene. The garden is on the Avenue Gabriel and fronts the beautifully shaded park between that avenue and the most beautiful of all thoroughfares, the Avenue des Champs Elysees.

The contracted price is 31,000,000 francs, which in American money amounts to $1,250,000. The club is said to have paid 3,000,000 francs for the property before the war, which at that time meant $600,000. If such was the purchase price to the club, that organization has realized a fine profit, but even at that the United States has entered into far from a bad bargain for the reason that property in that part of Paris, as in all the finer parts of the city, has advanced immensely in recent years, a reflex of the many new hotels and business properties which have been erected in that part of Paris recently; no less than sixty-five hotels, many of them large and up-to-date in every way, having gone up during the past eighteen months.

Thus the United States government which a few years ago did not own any property in Paris now has two for the housing of its diplomatic corps, its counsular agents and other officials and agents, the other being the ambassadorial residence at No. 2 Avenue d'Iena, purchased by Ambassador Herrick and turned over by him as a gift to our nation.

One can not help wondering if the splendid navy of modernized ships of which Secretary Wilbur spoke so glowingly to the Naval academy class of the present year is the same which he figured, some months since, would take about three-quarters of a billion dollars to put it into shape.

Crew of the Italia Alive.

It is safe to say that all the world rejoices in the definite announcement by the commander of the base ship, Citta di Milano, that General Umberto Nobile and his adventurous companions are alive; that communication with the Italia had been established Saturday night and that the Citta di Milano and the crew of the Italia had exchanged long messages throughout the night, the chief purpose of which was to make available all the information and directions possible to simplify the work of rescue.

So long as the position of Nobile and his companions was unknown, the problem of locating them partook somewhat of the nature of the proverbial hunt for the needle in the haystack, but since it is definitely known that the big dirigible stranded and was wrecked during a heavy storm in longitude 80.30 and latitude 27, which would place her at a point about 200 miles north of King's bay, the chances for rescue are almost immeasurably multiplied. That the messages received by the base ship were authentic is manifested by the fact that they gave the identification number of Biagi, the wireless man of the Italia.

That the Italia is a hopeless wreck is a matter for regret, for it makes completion of the planned flight impossible, but the fate of the airship is as less than nothing compared with the fate of her crew. If the members of the crew are able to withstand the excessive cold and possible hunger until rescue reaches them and they are brought back to safety, such matters as blows to pride of achievement are not to be considered. The thought of the world today is directed to the safety of the air voyagers. The Italia and what might have been may well be speedily forgotten.

The strike of 11,000 Pullman car porters has been indefinitely postponed upon the advise of President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, who pointed out that the economic conditions are not favorable for the success of such a strike. What a difference between the methods of a real labor leader and the commonplace agitator. The latter always figures that the disturbance caused by a strike is the end sought, and never what the outcome of it may be.

Thus far $653,756 have been expended in the presidential primary campaign by the candidates and their friends, without counting the $60,000 cost of the Congressional Records sent out for campaign purposes. It may be recalled that the primary was foisted upon the people on the strength of the claim that it would give the mass of ordinary means a chance at political preferment.

The Chicago federation of the Illinois Bankers' association is offering a reward of $5,000 for the capture, dead or alive, of any bank robber operating in Chicago, and the wording of the offer rather goes to indicate that the federation would far rather have the bank robber turned over dead than alive, no doubt figuring that in the event of his death he can not escape on a technicality and be quickly paroled in the somewhat improbable event of his conviction.

THE END OF THE TRAIL.

Pernicious Anemia.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Many persons know they are sick and often know what the trouble is, yet do not seek medical aid. There are a number of reasons for this decision. Sometimes it is because they fear the doctor's diagnosis, or the probability of an operation. They may be trusting to what some neighbor has suggested as a "sure cure."

Pernicious anemia is a disease not often recognized until an advanced stage has been reached. In pernicious anemia the sufferer is conscious of being below par, of having difficulty in doing the daily work, and of being extremely irritable. Despite these warnings he may be unwilling to see a doctor.

Pernicious anemia is found as an accompaniment of certain other diseases. It is really an affection of the red blood cells and the marrow of the long bones. It is brought on as the sequel to some toxic condition.

The symptoms of this trouble are somewhat indefinite. Until the disease has reached an advanced stage they are barely noticed. Then appear in rapid succession loss of weight, palpitation of the heart, marked shortness of breath, swelling of the limbs and perhaps of the face, and, finally, a general feeling of ill health. It is difficult for the affected one to do his work.

In certain cases there is no loss of flesh. On the contrary, the fat lies in thick folds on the abdomen, chest and over the ribs. The character of this fat is flabby, that is, it may be picked up between the fingers with the greatest ease.

The color of the skin changes from the natural healthy color to a sort of yellow. The veins stand out through the skin, showing their blue color. The whites of the eyes and the tissues of the eyelids have a bleached appearance.

There are other changes which occur as the disease progresses. But these can be noted by the physician only after a physical examination and a blood analysis have been made.

In the treatment of pernicious anemia, everything which would be fatiguing must be avoided. Long hours of work, long rail trips, sight-seeing, worry and anything else which uses up the energy must be forbidden.

Frequent rest periods should be insisted upon.

The diet should be nourishing and, above all, made appetizing. If any special foods are not to be taken the doctor will tell the patient. He will also prescribe the medication.

Greatest good in such a case may be accomplished by helping the sufferer to be cheerful and to enjoy life as he finds it.

Editorial Opinion.

AMERICAN AND ENGLISH LIBERTIES.

All England is following with strained attention a hearing now being held in a magisterial court in London. The original question is merely as to whether a girl was kissed in Hyde park, and with what detriment, if any, to public decorum. But out of this trivil episode have developed issues deemed so momentous that in the public mind they obscure problems of domestic and foreign policy, and even of peace and war. Already, indeed, the matter has caused grave debate in parliament and agitated discussion in the cabinet, and conceivably it may result in drastic changes in an important branch of the government. But to Americans it is interesting chiefly as a revelation of curious contrasts in the relations between the public and the police in the two countries.

The initial incident in what has become a national scandal was the arrest in the park several weeks ago of two persons whom a policeman charged with unseemly conduct. It attracted attention because the man proved to be Sir Leo Money, who has long been prominent in finance and politics and has held minor posts in the cabinet. But the excitement was not due, as might be inferred, to the fact that a distinguished personage was so accused, but to public resentment against the action of the authorities. With unanimity and vehemence the newspapers denounced the arrest as a detestable invasion of private rights and an intolerable offense against the liberty of the citizen. And when the charge was dismissed the outcry against "espionage" and "police tyranny" increased, with thunderous demands that the government abolish a system to which Britons never, never would be slaves.

But this was not all. Stung by the tumult, the police made the fatal blunder of trying to justify themselves by extorting admissions from the young woman in the case. She was summoned to Scotland Yard and subjected to five hours of "third degree" questioning. When this became known parliament itself joined in the uproar, and the government was forced to promise a public investigation of the outrage and of the whole police system. Nothing will now satisfy the nation, but a decisive repudiation and abolition of such methods.

The agitation illustrates in striking fashion a deep-rooted instinct of the English people—to resist any encroachment by the police power upon civil rights. Aware that in many European countries the police system has been used to suppress free speech, to impair political rights and to coerce private citizens through espionage and intimidation, they resent instantly any resort to such practices. Paradoxically, there is no country in which the public pays readier obedience and respect to police authority when legitimately exercised, and none in which the slightest misuse of it provokes more emphatic condemnation.

Americans, on the other hand, are as a rule far less submissive than Britons to proper police control, while at the same time they tolerate the most outrageous acts of police despotism and illegality in public affairs and in dealing with prisoners. On the whole, the British attitude on this important phase of public administration seems the sounder.—Philadelhia Record.

The Way of the World.

We all need information a great deal more than we need conversation. Luncheon clubs and organizations of several kinds are properly interested in international peace. They can do much in promoting it—especially those clubs which have relations with similar organizations abroad. But first of all the members need information. They need information about European boundaries and European politics and European problems.

Aeroplanes of the future will be bigger and swifter and safer. So says Charles L. Lawrance, inventor of the Wright Whirlwind motor. In flying, speed and safety go hand in hand instead of opposing each other. The speed of automobile driving has much to do with the element of safety. Swifter aeroplanes are expected to be safer planes.

When Mr. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson railway, sold that road's holdings in Wabash & Lehigh Valley stock to the Pennsylvania system he sold a dream for $63,000,000. Mr. Loree long believed in another great trunk line system across the territory between New York and Chicago. He had gathered his huge holdings for that purpose. Giving up his dream he gets cash for it. Sometimes dreams that can be sold for cash are even better than those that come true. It all depends on the dream.

Birth of a Solar System.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The strange behavior of the new star, Nova Pictoris, in the southern constellation, Pictor, continues to puzzle astronomers. In 1925 this star suddenly burst out with 10,000 times its former brightness. Before the outburst it had been far too faint to be glimpsed with the naked eye. It was then of the twelfth magnitude—a telescopic object only. From this it jumped to the second magnitude—the eye can easily see stars down to the sixth magnitude. It was like a sudden conflagration in the heavens.

After months the new star began to show a nebulous envelope, surrounding it like a faint ring, and slowly expanding. This has continued, but lately there have been seen three or four masses in the middle of the nebulous surroundings, as if the star had been split asunder.

This may be the birth of a solar system. Out of the scattered matter emanating from the exploded star, planets may gradually be formed more or less like those revolving around our sun. This would fairly well accord with the "planetesimal theory" of the origin of our solar system. According to that theory there was a time in the far past when the sun existed without planets.

The consequence perhaps of the gravitational disturbance caused by some other massive body passing very near, it was disrupted. Immense streams of matter were hurled forth from it, and these under the influence of conflicting attractions were thrown into great spirals, which gradually condensed into discrete masses and particles. Where two or more such streams met knots were formed out of the knots by the continued infall of the scattered matter, planets were built up, one of which became our earth, while a much more formidable knot became the giant, Jupiter, and so on—the eight principal planets and a thousand or more planetoids, or asteroids, being the final product of this catastrophic method of world birth—of supplying a lone sun with a family of satellite children.

There are certain seed capsules which, at a touch, suddenly fly to pieces and scatter their seeds around them. I do not mean to indicate here anything more than the picturesque suggestion of a resemblance. Nature is full of these superficial, but every alluring, accidental likeness. But it does seem strange for a sun to explode like a pod!

If Nova Pictoris really has afforded to us a spectacle of planetary birth we could have no hope—nor hardly our race while it lasts of witnessing the maturing of those baby worlds.

There is an extraordinary disproportion between the very brief time required for the ejection of the material out of which the supposed new solar system is to be shaped, and the eons of evolution that, judging by the earth's history, must elapse before the formative process can be completed. A thousand million years, perhaps, before any life appears there! And perhaps there never will be life there. A distinguished astronomer has recently remarked that the very existence of a planet such as the earth, with so favorable a combination of physical and chemical conditions for the existence of life, is an extremely rare accident. "For what good a solar system then?" some may ask. Answering questions might be: For what good stars that can not be seen? Or flowers that nobody can pick? Or sweet bird songs in a wilderness? The whole trouble is that our inherent egoism makes us judge everything, even in the remotest depths of the universe, solely from the human viewpoint.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

PASTOR DISCUSSES CAUSES OF CRIME

"Pussyfooting in Religion" Is Sermon Topic of Dr. U. S. Davis

Causes of crime were considered by Dr. U. S. Davis in his sermon, "Pussyfooting in Religion," at a well-attended service last night at Trinity Baptist Church.

Dr. Davis expressed the opinion that leniency of the courts is not altogether responsible for increasing crime but that method of court procedure was in fault. Dr. Davis mentioned the English method of court procedure as much more satisfactory, saying that "select experts on crime should sit upon a jury and not townsmen chosen at random"—that crimes should be judged "by qualified judges rather than those subject to the emotional appeal of the lawyers."

He cited Sunday movies and movies in general, as an element in crime, the downward trend of hoodlife and the weakening of parental restraint.

Over 3,000 Bible Chapters Read in Revival Services

More than 3,000 chapters of the Bible were read during the two-weeks revival brought to a close yesterday with three largely-attended services at First Church of Nazarene.

In the afternoon in his sermon on "The Second Coming of Christ," Rev. G. E. Waddle, pastor, answered the question, "Is Jesus coming to earth again and what does the Bible say about it?" with the words: "A statement is made, one in every 20 verses throughout the Bible, concerning the second coming of Christ. Five times more mention is made of his second advent than of the first." His text was Hebrews 9:28.

Last night Reverend Waddle preached on "Life's Highway," using as his text, Isaiah. 35:8, and yesterday morning talked on "Sanctification" which he said is "Set God through Christ and by the Holy Ghost."

"God is infinitely and unchangeably holy and desires a holy people," he said in part. His text was Hebrews 12:14.

Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Sutton of Olivet, Ill., who furnished music for the meetings, accepted an invitation to return for the revival next spring. Their program yesterday included the following numbers: Two duets, "I'm Pressing On the Upward Way" and "Oh Make Me Clean," sung at the morning service; a solo by Mr. Sutton, "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled" in the afternoon and the duet, "Zion's Hill" at night.

SPEED RESCUE PLAN FOR NOBILE'S CREW

Radio Advises Two Men Hurt When Gondola Drops to Earth

London, June 11—Spurred on by radio reports from the Italia that while Gen. Umberto Nobile and the 17 members of his crew were alive, two of those aboard the airship were seriously injured when the ship's gondola was hurled to the ground in a storm, relief workers attempted to accelerate their rescue plans today.

The gondola was detached from the airship during a terrific storm and Nobile and seven of the crew hurtled to the ground inside it. The remainder of the crew drifted 30 kilometers to the eastward with the dirigible before it came to the ground.

In this way the crew of the Italia became separated into two parts on the ice-floes of the Arctic, advices from King's Bay, Spitzbergen received by the Exchange Telegraph Co. in Rome and relayed here stated.

The ice-ship Hobby has advised that a strong wind is now breaking up the ice and that it will soon be possible for the ship to proceed farther northward to search for the Italia's crew.

To Press Onward

Both the Hobby and the steamer Braganzia will attempt to press onward to Cape North as soon as possible. Captain Riiser-Larsen, the Norwegian aviator, has reached the Hobby in his plane, the Gull.

Larsen and Lieutenant Holm will attempt to locate the Italia's castaways from the air and drop food and other supplies down to them. Holm made one attempt to scour the northern regions but was compelled by inclement weather to make a landing on the ice of Mossel Bay.

Meanwhile the Italia continues to keep in constant touch with the Citta Di Milano at King's Bay at radio. The two parts of the crew are on an ice-pack 80:30 degrees north latitude and 28:4 east longitude. They are unable to reach each other because of open water leads in the ice.

Have Sufficient Food

The members of the Italia's crew have sufficient food to last them until the middle of next month, and those who were not injured are in excellent health and spirits, the Citta Di Milano was informed.

Three members of the crew, better equipped than the others to combat Arctic conditions because of Alpine experience, are reported to be proceeding southward ahead of the others and may be able to reach the rescuers and lead them back to the Italia.

Man Wanted as Murder Suspect Released After Capture Here

A reception committee whose presence kept him figuratively as well as literally on the jump, greeted Jimmie Young, negro, when he arrived in this city Saturday night via an eastbound Big Four freight train from Bellefontaine.

Shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night the police received a call from the police department at Bellefontaine asking them to apprehend one Jimmie Young, a colored man who had been released from a hospital there a short time before and who was thought to have boarded a Big Four freight train. A short time after his release, the Bellefontaine police reported, word had been received from the chief of police at Columbus that Young was wanted in that city for murder.

Police and special officers were stationed along the Big Four tracks here from the western to the eastern border of the city to await the coming of the freight train and Jimmie. As the train, which was brought to a stop in the eastern end of the yards, passed one of the officers, a negro was sighted who glanced at the officer just as he pointed a finger at him.

A short distance farther on as Young jumped from the train he saw a patrolman and immediately hopped back on.

This was repeated a half dozen times until the train was brought to a stop and Young finally placed under arrest.

A few minutes after he had been locked up, the police received word from the Columbus police that Young was not the man they wanted and he was released.

The Mystery at Styles

THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

What Has Happened So Far

Cavendish invites Hastings, old friend home on sick leave, to spend a month at Styles Court. He is annoyed by his step-mother, who recently married Alfred Inglethorp, distrusted by John, his wife and his brother Lawrence.

Soon after Hastings' arrival Evie Howard, Mrs. Inglethorp's companion, denounces the latter as a scoundrel and begging Hastings to look after Mrs. Inglethorp who, she feels, is surrounded by a lot of sharks after her money. With Lawrence, Hastings calls on Cynthia Murdoch who works at the Court but works in the dispensary. They have quite a discussion about poisons. Following a quarrel with her husband, Alfred Inglethorp is mysteriously found during the night and dies. Poirot happens to be out of town that evening with Dr. Bauerstein, a London specialist, sojourning in the neighborhood. Hastings persuades John to get M. Poirot, an old friend and famous detective, to investigate his mother's death. Poirot finds a number of clues. Inglethorp pretends great grief. Hastings concludes that Mrs. Inglethorp was poisoned by strychnine in a cup of cocoa brought to her each night. Poirot is indifferent to Hastings' suggestion and Hastings loses confidence in him. Lawrence tells that his mother died from natural causes. The family doctor arrives and it becomes clear that Mrs. Inglethorp's forces to her husband as her will made automatically revoked the leaving everything to John. Cynthia proves that Mrs. Inglethorp made a will on the very day of her death and that that will has disappeared. Evie Howard is sacked. Poirot discovers to his amazement that Mrs. Inglethorp's dispatch case which he had locked, has been opened although the door of his room was locked.

Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 14

We looked at one another blankly. Poirot had walked over to the window. He was outwardly calm, but his hands, which from force of habit were mechanically straightening the spill vases on the mantelpiece, were shaking violently.

"Mon ami, it was like this," he said at last. "There was something in that envelope, a piece of evidence, slight it may perhaps, but still enough of a clue to connect the murderer with the crime. It was vital to him that it should be destroyed before it was discovered and its significance appreciated. Therefore, he took the risk, the great risk, coming in here. Finding the door locked, he was obliged to force it, thereby announcing his presence. For him to take that risk, it must have been something of great importance."

"But what was it?"

"That, I do not know! A clue of some kind, without doubt. Some scrap of paper Dorcas saw in the grate yesterday afternoon. And then anger burst forth freely—against animal that I am! I am a thing! I have behaved like a fool! I should never have left the room. I should have carried it with me. Ah, triple pig! And now it is gone. It is destroyed—but is it? Is there not yet a chance? I must leave no stone unturned—" He rushed like a madman from the room and I followed him as soon as I had sufficiently recovered my wits. But before I had reached the top of the stairs he was out of sight.

Cavendish was standing where the passage branched, staring down the left hand passage in the direction in which Poirot had disappeared.

"What has happened to your extraordinary little friend, Mr. Hastings? He has just rushed past me like a mad bull."

"He's rather upset about something," I remarked feebly. I really did not know how much Poirot would wish me to disclose. As I saw a faint smile gather on Mrs. Cavendish's expressive mouth, I endeavoured to try and turn the conversation by saying: "They haven't met yet, have they?"

"Who?"

"Mr. Inglethorp and Miss Howard."

She looked at me in rather a disconcerting manner.

"Do you think it would be such a disaster if they did meet?"

"Well, don't you?" I said, rather taken aback.

"No." She was smiling in her quiet way. "I should like to see a good flare up. It would clear the air. At present we are all thinking so much, and saying so little."

"John doesn't think so," I remarked. "He's anxious to keep them apart."

"Oh, John!"

Something in her tone fired me, and I blurted out:

"Old John's an awfully good sort."

She studied me curiously for a minute or two, and then said, to my great surprise:

"You are loyal to your friend. I like you for that."

"Aren't you my friend too?"

"I am a very bad friend."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because it is true. I am charming to my friends one day, and forget all about them the next."

I don't know what impelled me, but I was nettled, and I said foolishly and not in the best of taste:

"Yet you seem to be invariably charming to Dr. Bauerstein!"

Instantly I regretted my words. Her face stiffened. I had the impression of a steel curtain coming down and blotting out the real woman. Without a word, she turned and went swiftly up the stairs, whilst I stood like an idiot gaping after her.

I was recalled to other matters by a frightful row going on below. I could hear Poirot shouting and expounding. I was vexed to think that my diplomacy had been in vain. The little man appeared to be taking the whole house into his confidence, a proceeding of which I, for one, doubted the wisdom. Once again I could not help regretting that my friend was so prone to lose his head in moments of excitement. I stepped briskly down the stairs. The sight of me calmed Poirot almost immediately. I drew him aside.

"My dear fellow," I said, "is this wise? Surely you don't want the whole house to know of this occurrence? You are actually playing into the criminal's hands."

"You think so, Hastings?"

"I am sure of it."

"Well, well, my friend, I will be guided by you."

"Good. Although, unfortunately, it is a little too late now."

"True."

He looked so crestfallen and abashed that I felt quite sorry, although I still thought my rebuke a just and wise one.

"Well," he said at last, let us go, mon ami."

"You have finished here?"

"For the moment, yes. You will walk back with me to the village?"

"Willingly."

He picked up his little suit-case, and we went out through the open window in the drawing-room. Cynthia Murdoch was just coming in, and Poirot stood aside to let her pass.

"Excuse me, mademoiselle, one minute."

"Did you ever make up Mrs. Inglethorp's medicines?"

A slight flush rose in her face, as she answered rather constrainedly:

"No."

"Only her powders?"

The flush deepened as Cynthia replied:

"Oh, yes, I did make up some sleeping powders for her once."

"These?"

Poirot produced the empty box which had contained powders.

She nodded.

"Can you tell me what they were? Sulphonal? Veronal?"

"No, they were bromide powders."

"Ah! Thank you, mademoiselle; good morning."

As we walked briskly away from the house, I glanced at him more than once. I had often before noticed that, if anything excited him, his eyes turned green like a cat's. They were shining like emeralds now.

"My friend," he broke out at last, "I have a little idea, a very strange and probably utterly impossible idea. And yet—it fits in."

I shrugged my shoulders. I privately thought that Poirot was rather too much given to these fantastic ideas. In this case, surely, the truth was only too plain and apparent.

"So that is the explanation of the blank label on the box," I remarked. "Very simple, as you said. I really wonder that I did not think of it myself."

Poirot did not appear to be listening to me.

"They have made one more discovery, la-bas," he observed, jerking his thumb over his shoulder in the direction of Styles. "Mr. Wells told me as we were going upstairs."

What was it?"

"Locked up in the desk in the boudoir they found a will of Mrs. Inglethorp's, dated before her marriage, leaving her fortune to Alfred Inglethorp. It must have been made just at the time they were engaged. It came quite as a surprise to Wells—and to John Cavendish, also. It was written on one of those printed will forms, and witnessed by two of the servants—not Dorcas."

"Did Mr. Inglethorp know of it?"

"He says not."

"One might take that with a grain of salt," I remarked skeptically. "All these wills are very confusing. Tell me, how did those scribbled words on the envelope help you to discover that a will was made yesterday afternoon?"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

It was warm when me and Jubilee woke up yesterday morning. Sunday is useful to a fella in vacation time, because if it wasn't Sundays he wouldn't know when one week ends and another begins, not that there is any reason why a fella should know anything like that. About all a fella needs to know is when it is time to eat and where a swimming hole is. His folks can tell him when it is time to take a bath, and when he should go to bed, and when the cows ought to be milked.

I haven't caught my squirrel yet. It has not been around the trap place I set it the last time. My grandfather said maybe it has gone to visit its brother's family, and if such is the case the Lord only knows when it will be back, and it might make its home there permanent. And all at once my aunt glared at him and said nothing would give her greater pleasure than to sing at the funeral. And he said if she would promise to set sing until his funeral comes off he will try to arrange it for her. Then she seemed madder than ever. And I don't see where he said anything to cause her mad. But I wish the next time he makes her mad he wouldn't do it till after she has washed me for Sunday school. I ain't got only one face, and if she wears that one out like she almost done yesterday I don't know what I will do for another one.

The Sunday school windows was all open, and the birds were singing in the maple trees outside, and when the super wasn't looking Pickles went over to the bench by the window to get him a book and threw the super's hat out of the window. We thought what a time the super would have when he came to look for his hat, and we had almost forgot about it when I looked out and saw a fat tramp going across the commons wearing the super's hat and walking like he owned the earth. I went up to the super and whispered that the tramp had grabbed his hat, and I pointed to the tramp. The super went out of the door like a shot, and the tramp lit out, and they were gone about ten minutes and the super came back with his hat and a black eye, and he tried to act like nothing had happened. He said, "The entire Sunday school will now stand and sing: 'This is the Way I Long Have Sought.'" So we did. I would of liked to of seen the fight. I'll bet his coat tails flew around.

Today was Monday, and nothing much happened. We slid down the slippery slicks, and I had a fight with Pickles who thought maybe he could lick me and found out he couldn't. I was let set up till nine o'clock, because no one thought to send me to bed before that.

Love's Awakening

THE HEART STORY OF A WOMAN'S AFFECTIONS

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion Morton Shows Bitter Resentment

INTO Marion Morton's tear-swollen eyes flashed startled, incredulous joy at my assurance that she came first with her mother and that her stepfather held only second place in Lillian's heart. For a moment her eyes held mine, then they suddenly were averted from my face.

"I'm a selfish beast, I know," she said shamefacedly, "but do you know that isn't enough for me? I don't want him to have even second place. I want him to go away and never come back. I hate him!"

There was temper in her last words and I made no answer to them whatever. I knew her strong sense of justice, her heritage from her mother, and I waited for the retraction which I was sure would come.

"Of course, I don't mean that last exactly," she said after a little. "He has tried to be nice to me, I know, and he hasn't tried to make me obey him yet in anything. He'd better not, either," she added darkly, and I saw that she was indulging herself in the age-old prejudice against step-parents.

"I fancy he will leave all your disciplining to your mother, my dear," I said, keeping my face straight with difficulty.

Marion's lips quirked into a reluctant grin.

"Oh! I'm not afraid that he's going to beat me, or lock me up on bread and water," she said, "but it doesn't stand to reason that he's never going to interfere with me. He's a man, you know, and they just naturally can't help bossing. But that isn't what's ailing me," she finished, honestly. "It's just that I want my mother all to myself as we used to be, and I can't have her that way any more."

"Some day," I said slowly, "we're going to thrash this question all out. I'm going to tell you some things about your mother's life which will make you understand more clearly why she has become reconciled to your step-father. But today isn't a propitious time. You're in no mood to listen, and I do not feel adequate to the recital. Now suppose we go back to that secret you wish to tell me, and the thing you want me to keep for you. Is it something which would be wrong for your mother not to know?"

"I don't know," Lillian's daughter said, adding surprisingly: "It's a secret I've kept from her ever since my grandmother died—it's hers, really—and I'm sure there's no harm in it. My grandmother told me to tell nobody, and I've obeyed her. But now that I'm going off to school and he is in the house, I'm not going to risk leaving it around for him to find. And I can't take it to school. If he weren't around, I'd disobey my grandmother's wish and tell my mother, for of course I can't go on always without telling somebody. I might get sick or die. And you're next to my mother, Auntie Madge, so I've come to you."

I debated my course swiftly. Instinctively my loyalty to Lillian forbade my sharing a secret with Marion from which she was excluded. On the other hand, Marion was in a state of mind where if I refused to keep her secret, she might share it with someone less loyal or less discreet than I. And no doubt it was only some vagary of her grandmother's mind. I knew that Tom Morton's mother for whom Lillian had tenderly cared in her last days had lacked the possession of her full faculties for weeks before her death.

"All right, my dear," I said at last. "I won't fail you. Tell me what you wish me to do, and I will say nothing about it until you give me permission."

She threw her arms about my neck and kissed me warmly.

"You're such a darling Auntie Madge!" she said explosively, and then she went to the door and locked it, investing the act with a melodramatic little air of mystery which amused me in spite of my very real qualms as to the wisdom of letting her confide in me.

On The Remnant Counter

By MURRAY POWERS

LINGO

It depends on your interest in the theater whether or not you have heard of Variety, the showman's "encyclopedia." All that is and isn't news one finds in Variety which runs the gamut of drama, vaudeville, burlesque, circuses, carnivals, newspaperdom, radio and concerts, etc.

Variety has a language all of its own. Its slang is its own creation. It doesn't profess to be high brow, even middle brow and it loves to consider itself lowbrow. At one time Variety issued a four-page daily which it dubbed "The World's Worst Daily."

The other day we referred to a motion picture that was barred by the State Board of Censors. It was Emil Jannings' "Street of Sin." Since then the picture has been approved.

Now we have just read Variety's review of "Street of Sin" and there are two deluxe paragraphs from the review which you must read. We know you will enjoy them. Proceed—

"Miss Wray has been given a Salvation Army bonnet, folds her hands, looks good in the slum surroundings, and waits for Basher Bill (Jannings) to break into her room. Meanwhile, Annie (Miss Baklanova) has turned over her night's earnings to the Basher, been thrown out for holding out and taken back and burned up by her man suddenly taking the veil because of his yen for Elizabeth (Miss Wray).

"It's all curtains when Annie, frantic with jealousy, tips off to the cops who did the amusement part stick-up and the holdups ride into Harmony Row for a gun play raid. The Basher takes a bullet from one of his gang's guns and expires after he has saved the babies in the Salvation Army center, the spot his former co-workers have picked for defense."

CONFIDENCE

THE safest place in the world for news that isn't "ripe" is a newspaper office.

This remark is prompted by a paragraph which a newspaper in the Northwest often uses above its title head.

The paragraph reads:

"It is just as safe to discuss news matters in advance with your newspaper, without danger of your confidence being violated, as it is for you to discuss finances with your banker or your health with your family physician—whether dealing with friend or 'foe' your newspaper never divulged confidential information in its years of public service."

Business men, manufacturers and public officials often berate newspapers for "spilling" their plans and proposals. The cause of that "spilling" is in the majority of instances due to the close-mouthedness of those same men.

They forget that the duty and purpose of a newspaper is to publish news that concerns the public. Scores of rumors daily come into a newspaper plant. The proposal shrouded with the greatest secrecy gradually comes to a newspaper office through some grapevine channel. And, then the newspaper begins its check. Those behind the proposal or movement clamp their teeth and deny vociferously that any such proposal or movement is being considered. So emphatic is their denial that it takes on an element of mystery. And, the newspaper investigation goes on with the result that the story comes out, sometimes not all of it at once and some times, (regretably) not altogether true.

No newspaper desires to harm or handicap a business deal or public improvement. It would much rather "play ball" with those behind the deal, if there is a justifiable reason.

So, if men in public life, business men, manufacturers would come to realize that the best place for their uncompleted plans, which are likely to get out before they are culminated, is the newspaper office they would find that the benefits from such a practice would be beyond comprehension.

GOOD IDEA

THE most sensible suggestion we have yet seen for spending funds raised by high school senior classes in plays and similar enterprises is found in the high school at Tiltonville, Jefferson County, Ohio.

Instead of leaving some memorial to the school the 19 members of the graduating class of this year have taken the money and under the supervision of their school superintendent, used it to make a trip to Washington, D. C.

Think of the benefits that trip will mean to those 19 graduates.

For 12 years most of them have spent their days at their desks, getting "book learning." They have seen pictures of outstanding governmental buildings and they have a general idea of the duties of and reason for each department.

Although this is an age of travel it can be assumed that quite a few of these graduates might never get to Washington, were it left up to them. And, if later in life they did realize the big step they missed they would blame the parents, or we all do, some of the blame of this would fall on the parents or else what is the use of parents.

This city of the Wisconsin valley is a good deal smaller than Marion and these three class seniors have set a mighty fine example for the graduates of Marion to follow.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Britain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interfered with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, choleras, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.—Adv.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And so you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All good stores have the genuine Syrup Pepsin—adv.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.
